PREFACE

When my first book "Common Infectious Diseases with Therapeutics and Repertory" was published in 1984, opinion in general was that the book was useful to the students of homoeopathy and young practitioners, but did not contain the experience of the author. Educated class interested in homoeopathy was of opinion that masses can only be convinced of efficacy of homoeopathy if some experience can be put to their knowledge in the form of some important case reports where other pathies failed and homoeopathy succeeded in curing the patient. So to face the demand I brought out from my almara, my hand written notes in the form of book which I have been writing since 1939 and also my current case record book and selected about fifty cases, which along with other articles I have given in this book.

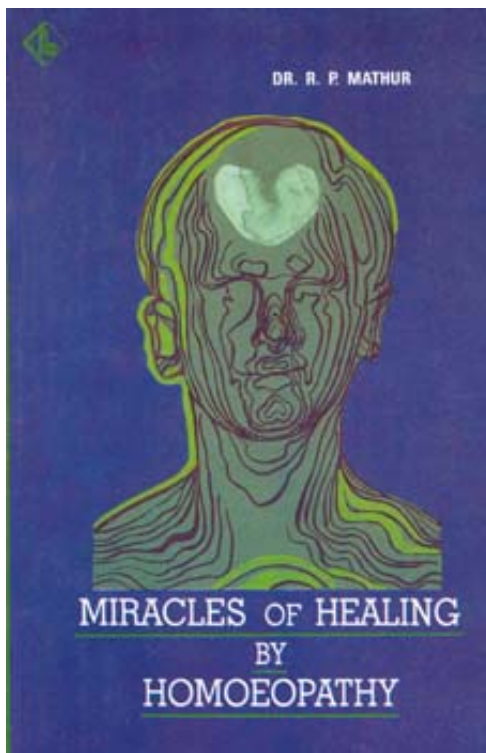

First chapter is "Conception of Disease and Cure" and from this you will yourself conclude if homoeo therapeutics is based on correct inductive reasoning.

There are two papers which I read in International Homoeopathic League Conference held in New Delhi in 1967 and 1977, and one of them "Different aspects of homoeopathic prescribing" may be controversial.

After reading few case reports my co-workers may disagree to the art of prescribing I have adopted but the fact is there.

But I am sure if you keep this book at your bed-side lamp, to read when your mind is relaxed, you will always prefer homoeopathic treatment.
