PUBLISHER'S NOTE (FIRST EDITION)

We take the opportunity of placing before the Homoeopathic profession this little brochure comprising symptomatic pictures of a few recently proved drugs and a group of Nosodes known as 'Bowel Nosodes'. In this age of antibiotics, it is becoming more and more apparent that however useful they may appear to be, they are very often attended with undesirable side-effects and render the patients allergic to their future use. Hence there is an attempt on the part of Homoeopaths to prove these drugs, on strictly Hahnemannian lines, to ascertain their individualising features for therapeutic purpose and to render them suitable for administration in potentised form to antidote the ill effects of the respective antibiotic drugs in crude doses. It was therefore felt that the attention of our Indian Homoeopathic profession should be drawn to the proving symptoms of these drugs, which at present remain scattered in different journals not easily accessible to general practitioners. The group of 'Bowel Nosodes', though introduced to Homoeopathy by Bach & Wheeler towards the latter part of the third decade of this century, has lately been brought into prominence by the work of Paterson and is engaging more and more the attention of the modern Homoeopaths of the world. So it is high time that our Indian Homoeopaths should have an easy access to factual informations about these drugs and an opportunity to determine the sphere of their therapeutic utility as complementary to the great group of 'anti-psoric' drugs-discovered by our Master Hahne-
