Argentum muriaticum

Argentum nitricum

Argentum oxydatum

Argentum phosphoricum

Argentum sulphuricum

Introduction:

If gold is the king of metals, then silver may be rightly called the "Queen of Metals". The shine of silver bears comparison with the radiance of moonlight. Its lustre is no less enticing than the glitter of gold.

Silver is often called 'half moon' because of its resemblance with the moonlight. (Rubrics: New moon aggravation - Arg. nit). The English word silver is derived from Gothic word silbur or from the Assyrian word serpu.

A country in Latin America, Argentina has derived its name from the word silver. In early sixteenth century, Spanish explorer Juan Solis sighted

LESSER KNOWN ASPECTS OF ARGENTUM MIND

Argentum nitricum patients have a very low endurance. Their sustenance and their ability to bear suffering is also very low. Hence, they are scared of any affliction, physical or mental. Hence, their fears like:

1. Fear of ordeals
2. Fear of losing self-control.

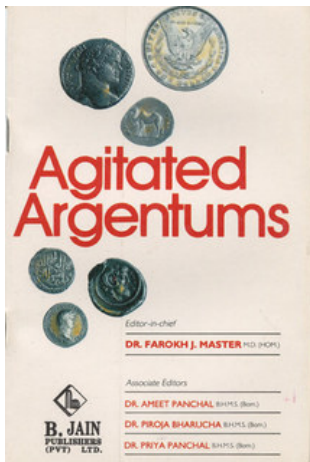

If you are about to break some news to an Argentum nitricum patient, he would become very anxious because he cannot bear to be kept waiting or in abeyance. Argentum nitricum patients cannot brook suspense.

The following rubrics convey the intensity of the above emotion.

Suspense aggravates (Phatak repertory, single, rubric, pg 334)

Ailments from anticipation (S.I.)

Argentum nitricum patients have always been projected as IMPULSIVE^ DRAMATIC, HURRIED and LIVELY. Their style of narrating symptoms holds you in rapt attention. Their anxiety about health can
