Introduction

Proving Methodology

A proving of Turkey Vulture (Cathartes aura) performed in Phoenix, Arizona in the fall of 1999 consisted of 18 subjects who began taking Cathartes 30C on September 1, 1999. There were 3 male, 16 female and one dream prover. The participant's ages ranged from 21 to 65 years old. Eight proving supervisors monitored the participants closely for the month following taking the remedy and the proving supervisors reported directly to the proving coordinator. One of the subjects took the remedy again at 200C potency six months after the original proving. All participants gave informed consent to participate in this study. This was a partial proving.

Each prover was instructed to take a single daily dosage for a maximum of three days but to stop after any symptoms became apparent. Participants journaled their symptoms over the space of the next month. The specimen was obtained from a fresh automobile road-kill in Northern Arizona. A trituration from the turkey vulture primary tail feather was made to a 3C potency and then hand succussed to a 30C potency. The remedy is now available from the Hahnemann pharmacy.

The proving was a double blind test: neither the provers nor the supervisors knew what the remedy was until after the proving. At the end of the month, provers participated in a videotaped exit meeting and the participant's written journals were reviewed separately. Any participants who had residual symptoms or improvement following the one-month interval were followed subsequently until the symptoms resolved.
