Introduction

Proving Methodology

A proving of Round Stingray (Urolophus halleri) was performed in Phoenix, Arizona in the fall of 1998. The proving consisted of 15 subjects who began taking Urolophus 30C on September 1st, 1998.

The provers were to take a single daily dosage for a maximum of three days but to stop after any symptoms became apparent. Participants journaled their symptoms over the space of the next month. Informed consent was obtained from each participant.

Symptoms were reviewed in an exit group meeting one month later which was videotaped. Journals were reviewed separately. Any participants who had residual symptoms or improvement following the one month interval, were followed subsequently until the symptoms resolved. There were two male participants and 13 female participants. The ages ranged from 21 -65 years old.

The mother tincture was obtained from a healthy specimen of the whole animal obtained in San Diego, California.

There were five proving supervisors who followed the provers closely over the months following the start of the proving. The proving supervisors reported directly to the proving coordinator. This was a partial proving.
